

Jim Robbins

E-mail: jim@robbinswritings.com

Phone: (904) 886-8314

10752 Pacer Ct.

Jacksonville, Florida

32257

BIOGRAPHY

Jim Robbins

Jim Robbins is a former pastor—turned writer—who writes for Christians who are hungry for more, who want restoration of heart and life.

Published:

Jim's recent book, Recover Your Good Heart – Living Free From Religious Guilt and the Shame of Not Good-Enough dispels the fallacy that Christianity is primarily about acting like a good Christian 'should.' Rather, the offer of Jesus is an offer of a new and good heart. Spiritual growth is about learning to live from that good heart.

Interview: Listen to a podcast in which Jim was interviewed about his new book, Recover Your Good Heart. Listen to interview.

Jim is also the author of Outposts of the Kingdom—Life After Church As We Know It, a book about organic forms of Christian community and their critical importance in the face of coming global energy shortfalls that will affect each household and every ministry.

Jim has also been published on the website, Neighborhoods.org.

Neighborhoods.org "exists to educate people about walkable neighborhoods and help them find these types of neighborhoods." Jim wrote an article for this site called "Walkable Church."

Jim has also written articles on FaithWriters.com.

Before Jim decided to write/speak:

Robbins has a Masters of Divinity from Asbury Theological Seminary and served as a pastor for 3 1/2 years . Additionally, Robbins also led and trained worship and worship design teams before transitioning into a writing/speaking ministry. Jim has led several retreats to help men recover their hearts and find their place in the Story.

During the late '90's, Jim was asked by author and futurist, Leonard Sweet, to serve on a ministry consulting team Sweet was forming.

Jim is married to his wife, Lynn; and they have two children, Olivia and Nate. He currently lives in Jacksonville, Florida.